

Hudin K.S.

The place of the Apothecary Chancery in the Russian departmental system in the reign of the first representatives of Romanov dynasty. 1620-1650

Annotation

The article is devoted to the medical department – the Apothecary Chancery and its activities in Russia of 17th century. In the article is investigated the extensive list of the links into the system, and also the diverse staff that testify to the variety of functions.

Written by Hudin K.S.

Thursday, 21 September 2023 00:00

---

Keywords

Source, archive, medical history, social history of medicine, history of science, Russia, departmental system, Apothecary chancery, 17th century

Download the article: pdf

About the authors

Hudin Kirill Stanislavovich – postgraduate student of the department of auxiliary and special historical disciplines of the Institute for History and Archives of the Russian State University for the Humanities (RSUH), Moscow; 8-916-904-52-76; khudin1988@yandex.ru

You can read completely article in the russian historic-archival magazine “The Herald of an Archivist”. Read more about terms of subscription here .

Полностью материал публикуется в российском историко-архивоведческом журнале ВЕСТНИК АРХИВИСТА. Ознакомьтесь с условиями подписки здесь .