

Battle of Moscow: fate of the PE-2 crew (1941)

Written by Sadovnikov S.I., Katkov S.M.

Tuesday, 14 December 2021 04:51

---

Sadovnikov S.I., Katkov S.M.

Battle of Moscow: fate of the PE-2 crew (1941)

Annotation

The author shows the significance of archival researches in the work of voluntary searching associations that discover and identify remains of the soviet servicemen who were killed in actions during the Great Patriotic War 1941–1945. Reconstructed Frontal fate of the crew of the Soviet bomber PE-2, not returning from a mission in December 1941 during the Battle of Moscow.

Фото 3. Вестник архивиста. 2012. № 2.

Battle of Moscow: fate of the PE-2 crew (1941)

Written by Sadovnikov S.I., Katkov S.M.
Tuesday, 14 December 2021 04:51

---

Keywords

Battle of Moscow, Jigaev A.Ya., Kulak G.D., Rubinstein Ya. Sh., Air Force of Red army, searching associations, anthropological expertise, archival documents, Memory books, immortalizing

Download the article: pdf

About the authors

Sadovnikov Sergey Ivanovich - senior researcher, Research Institute for the Development of Professional Education, PhD in History, Moscow; 8-916-807-20-60; sadovnikovs@yandex.ru

Katkov Sergey Mikhailovich - researcher of the Geological Institute of the Russian Academy of Sciences (GIN RAS), Candidate of Geological and Mineralogical Sciences, Moscow; 8-926-340-73-05; sergkat@yandex.ru

You can read completely article in the russian historic-archival magazine “The Herald of an Archivist”. Read more about terms of subscription here .

Battle of Moscow: fate of the PE-2 crew (1941)

Written by Sadovnikov S.I., Katkov S.M.

Tuesday, 14 December 2021 04:51

---

Полностью материал публикуется в российском историко-архивоведческом журнале ВЕСТНИК АРХИВИСТА. Ознакомьтесь с условиями подписки здесь .